STEALING CRICKENS.-An old lad from the country came to the city last evening to attend the Second Ward mar-ket. During the evening, some fellow came along and came along and stole four chickens from her wagon. She went to City Sergean From the Managare, and notified him of the circumstance, and described the personal appearance of the thief. The description the old lady gave exactly fit the notorious Bill Harris, and the officers were looking for that individual last evening.

the well known tragedian, appears in the Opera House to-night in "Virginius. The Charleston News and Courier says of Mr. McCullough's "Virginius:"

McCullough's "Virginius:"

"Mr. McCullough's Lear is a grand performance, but it is not as perfect in detail as his Virginius. The opening scene abowed that the tragedian is superior to Forrest, but the artistic finish of Edwin Booth seemed a little wanting here. The defect, however, was of short duration. As the actor warmed up to his work abundant beauties were manifest, and in the curse his genins rose to a height mover reached by Booth in this grand scene. The andience were held spell-bound; even at the close there was an interval of breathless silence, and then terval of breathless silence, and then baras forth such applause as showed how this wonderful acting was appreciated, and Mr. McCullough was called before the curtain to bow his acknowledgment the curtain to bow his acknowledgment of a well deserved compliment. From this point throughout his acting was superb. In Act II, in the scenes with Regan and Goneril, Mr. McCullough's acholarly reading and exquisite facial play deserved the highest praise, and in the atorm scene on the heath he was truly grand. When the curtain fell on Act III he was again called before the curtain and applauded to the echo."

ALAIM OF FIRE.—About 5 o'clock last evening an alarm of fire was sounded from the Fourth Ward. It proved to be an incipient fire at the residence of John McNabb, on 16th street, between Wood and Jacob. The fire was confined to the roof of the building, and originated from a defective flue. The steamers were promptly on the ground, and succeeded in extinguishing the flames before any serious damage was done.

Ar cleven o'clock last night the pros-pect of a healthy police court for this morning was not at all stimulating. Up to that hour not a solitary case had been booked. It is generally either a feast or a famine in police business. Monday and Tuesday mornings the dockets were un-usually large, while in all probability there will be a whitewash this morning.

the social that was to have been given at the social that was to have open given as Mrs. French's, on the National road, last evening, took place at the McLure House. A very select crowd was in attendance, who tripped away the hours pleasantly to Kramer's superb music.

her right, Bood 34,000 Barrett by the press we find the following:

The Opera House, last evening, was filled with a splendid andience of our best clitisens, who were not slow in manifesting their delight at the rare impersection of Mr. Barrett. "Richelleu" was the play presented—that clouded leaf of a remarkable history—and the mighty struggles and tottering weakness of the grand old man, nearing at once the end of earthly power and earthly existence, was portrayed by Mr. Barrett with a dramatic power and force such as is capable of being displayed by him alone. "Richelleu" is for many reasons peculiarly within the province of Mr. Barrett, and the characterization is all but perfect.

The most striking feature of Mr. Barrett's skill is his elecutionary art, which, augmented and made powerful by a voice of wondrous strength and harmony, renders the excomplishment of the most difficult and delicate requirements in this respect a seemingly trivial task. Indeed, the limit of his rescuese is apparent.

respect a seemingly trivial task. Indeed the limit of his resources is apparently so remote that the auditor is at once im-bued with the notion that it is boundless bued with the notion that it is boundless. He not only grasps the subject with an intellectual scope which allows nothing to escape, but with his fiery energy, thrilling tones and majesty of demeanor, gives full expression to its qualities, and electrifies the audience at every burst of passion.

MEDICAL men often puttle themselves over the large sale that Dr. Bull's Baby Syrup enjoys. Its great popularity is due only to the excellent qualities pos-sessed by this household medicine. 25
